Features & Benefits:

Rubber outsoles on safety footwear are synonymous with the Buckbootz brand. Today they are incorporated in the specification of every Buckbootz footwear product spanning three different construction methods. We had always been attracted to the prospect of having safety footwear manufactured using the injection moulded process to attach the sole units and have this incorporate rubber outsoles. Not straightforward. There were always doubts over the bonding process. Then came a breakthrough. New injection moulding and bonding technology enabled improved bonding of polyurethane outsoles and crucially for us there was potential to have that incorporate rubber outsoles.

In Spring 2010 we launched the Buckbootz Buckshot range featuring some of the first UK brand safety boots with this specification. Buckshot has become a key product range for dealers and merchants across the UK and in mainland Europe. This latest generation of Buckshot raises the levels further with the introduction of lightweight premium safety components merged with a new impressive super tough, durable aesthetic rubber outsole.
